I have here a list of some of the corporations of the nation which are making contributions from their stockholders' fund for the Crusade for Freedom, which may interest you. I have collected these from letters, which the companies themselves have written to listeners, who in turn have sent them in to me.

National Steel, $20,000 in 1956, $10,000 in 1957; First National City Bank of New York, $52,500 over the past four years; Ford Motor Company, $925,000 over the past four years; American Telephone and Telegraph Company, $75,000 a year over the past six years; Westinghouse Electric, $50,000 for the present year and the same for Socony Mobile Oil of New York (that's Standard Oil of New York); Standard Oil of New Jersey, $250,000 a year over the past five years, including the present one.
